Research and Development（R & D）is sometimes misunderstood; seeming to promise always new things.

GROUP5F, as well as looking at new products, seek ways to better utilise the tools we have to find new ways to challenge the software. Sometimes the development lies within us, within our teams' joint experience over many years of finding out how things work and what factors separate one idea from another.

Taking known technology and improving it for our own specific use limits risk and achieves cost certainties for our Clients.

On a material level, we are always looking at new products often finding workable solutions for our business in non-related industries. 3D design is always presenting new challenges and our goal is always to turn highly technical proposals into readily workable solutions at the workface.

This, sometimes, is where the real innovation of our Engineers is best demonstrated and proven.
